

Spencer Van Goor – Final Portfolio: Partnership Pitch Email (ZARA to LOEWE)

Subject: Exploring a Collaboration Opportunity with LOEWE (Crafted Access Line)

Dear LOEWE Team,

I hope this email finds you well. I am reaching out as the Director of Brand Partnerships team at ZARA to potentially explore a collaborative capsule collection between ZARA and LOEWE.

As a big part of the Inditex group, ZARA has built its renowned global presence on delivering trend-responsive accessibility and design, while LOEWE, under LVMH, still continues to set benchmarks for material innovation, meticulous detail work, craftsmanship, and creative direction within the luxury space. We see a riveting opportunity in bringing these two distinct strengths into dialogue by means of a thoughtfully developed, limited-edition collaboration.

Our intent of this partnership would not be replicating LOEWE's brand positioning, but to translate elements of its design ethos, particularly the emphasis on artisanal leatherwork and sculptural form, into a tightly edited capsule that maintains creative credibility while reaching a much larger audience. We at ZARA believe that there is a growing cultural relevance in exploring how heritage craftsmanship can be reformatted to reach design-conscious consumers while maintaining brand identity and meaning.

From our perspective at ZARA, any collaboration approached by our team would be met with a high level of respect for LOEWE's brand and creative autonomy. We ideally see LOEWE leading the creative direction and storytelling of this capsule collection, with ZARA supporting in clothing development, global distribution, and scaled production. Assortment size, release strategy, and positioning would be under careful control to ensure the alignment with LOEWE's core standards as well as to preserve a sense of exclusivity and prestige within this line.

We additionally recognize LOEWE's continuous commitment to cultural programming and textile craft, including initiatives highlighting artisanal practices and emerging perspectives. This unique collaboration could offer another platform to then extend that dialogue, while introducing new audiences to LOEWE's design philosophy and values in a way that is both considerate and contextually relevant.

In this beginning stage, we extend the opportunity to start a conversation to better understand your perspective on whether this collaboration could align with LOEWE's creative and strategic priorities. Should there be an interest in this collaboration, we would be more than happy to share a more detailed framework that outlines the scope, timelines, and creative direction for discussion.

Once again, we thank you for your time and consideration, and we look forward to the possibility of connecting and collaborating.

Kind regards,

Spencer Van Goor

ZARA Brand Partnerships

+1 (469) 616-9088

Spencer Van Goor – Final Portfolio: Partnership Pitch Email (ZARA x LOEWE to Alex Consani)

Subject: Partnership Opportunity: LOEWE x ZARA Capsule Collection Campaign

Dear Alex Consani and IMG Models Team,

I hope this email finds you well. I am reaching out as the Director of Brand Partnerships team at ZARA to introduce an exciting upcoming collaboration that we believe aligns strongly with Alex's distinct presence within current fashion and culture.

This Fall/Winter ready-to-wear season, ZARA will launch a limited-edition capsule collection in collaboration with LOEWE, bringing together ZARA's contemporary retail platform and global accessibility with LOEWE's design-led craftsmanship and sculptural aesthetic. The collection is focused on the translation of elevated design into a much more accessible format for a new generation of fashion consumers that value a balance between cultural relevance and quality as well as practicality and wearability. As we continue to shape the campaign's creative direction, we are seeking a select group of socially and culturally platformed individuals that reflect the spirit of this capsule collection.

Alex was the first to come to mind as a character who perfectly embodies the style of fashion-forward confidence and individuality that this project aims to communicate. Her ability to seamlessly move between digital culture and high fashion has positioned her as one of the most compelling voices in her contemporary style. We additionally believe her involvement would bring authenticity and a modern energy to the campaign while additionally helping set up a visual identity resonating across both luxury and emerging consumer audiences.

We would like to formally invite Alex to explore the opportunity to serve as one of the lead faces of the LOEWE x ZARA campaign. Her role would include participation in the primary editorial campaign shoot, social and digital campaign assets, and select launch-related promotional content surrounding the collection's release. The overall creative direction for this campaign will emphasize movement, form, and texture through an editorial lens, allowing the collection to communicate its story through presence alone.

This campaign is currently set for launch at the end of October, allowing flexibility for future creative conversations should there be a mutual interest in representing this capsule collection. We want to welcome the opportunity to share additional campaign materials including mood boards, preliminary creative concepts, and collection previews upon request. Again, we believe Alex's involvement would tremendously shape the way this collaboration is introduced to global audiences, bringing a timely and unique perspective that is entirely aligned with the cultural conversation surrounding fashion today.

Thank you for your time and consideration, and we would be thrilled to discuss this opportunity further with you to explore how we might collaborate.

Kind regards,

Spencer Van Goor

ZARA Brand Partnerships

+1 (469) 616-9088

Spencer Van Goor – Final Portfolio: Brand Strategy Briefs (LOEWE)

Project Name

LOEWE FW Campaign – “Craft and Form”

Project Overview

LOEWE will be launching a fall/winter collection centered around LOEWE’s continual emphasis on material innovation, sculptural design, and artistry. This campaign will reinforce LOEWE’s positioning as a modern luxury fashion house rooted in artisanal heritage while engaging a more culturally aware, younger luxury audience.

Objectives

- Reinforcing LOEWE’s fashion identity as a pioneer in craftsmanship and innovation in design
- Increase brand engagement among younger millennial and Gen Z luxury consumers
- Strengthen cultural relevance through artistic and editorial storytelling

Target Audience

Primary:

- Age: 20 – 45
- Design-literate, culturally engaged, fashion-forward
- Shops and follows luxury while balancing the value of creativity over status signaling

Behavioral Traits:

- Consumers of fashion through social platforms and digital editorials
- Valuing artistic direction and storytelling, craftsmanship, and authenticity

Tone & Voice

- Confident yet understated
- Minimal
- Intellectual
- Whimsical
- Artistic, not commercial

Creative Direction

- Abstract and/or surreal elements reflecting unique brand identity
- Focus on textures, construction, and materials
- Editorial campaign (gallery-like visuals, shot avant garde)

Deliverables

- Complete campaign look-book
- Digital editorial assets (website and social media platforms)
- Print placements in high fashion publications

Channels

- Owned: Social platforms, website
- Earned: Fashion publications/media/editorials
- Select paid placements and advertisements

Timeline

Fall/winter season launch

Key Performance Indicators (KPI)

- Brand perception metrics (craftsmanship association)
- Engagement rate on campaign assets

Spencer Van Goor – Final Portfolio: Brand Strategy Brief (ZARA)

Project Name

ZARA Seasonal Campaign – “Elevated Essentials”

Project Overview

ZARA is launching a global campaign that is focused on elevating ZARA’s core product offering through refined design, accessibility, and versatility. This campaign aims to reposition ZARA as a design-conscious and style-authoritative brand, rather than primarily trend-responsive.

Objectives

- Improve conversion rates on higher-margin pieces
- Increase perception of ZARA as a “premium feeling” accessible brand
- Drive traffic to retail and e-commerce locations

Target Audience

Primary:

- Age: 18 – 40
- Frequent shoppers valuing versatility
- Price-conscious, digitally native, and trend aware

Behavioral Traits:

- Mixing fast fashion with luxurious inspiration
- Active on fashion centered social media accounts and platforms

Tone & Voice

- Modern
- Trendy
- Aspirational yet inclusive
- Confident and accessible
- Clean

Creative Direction

- Emphasis on movement and silhouette
- Styling versatility focus
- Minimal, polished visuals

Deliverables

- Social media campaigning
- E-commerce homepage takeover
- In-store visual merchandising updates and advertising

Channels

- Owned: Social platforms, website
- Earned: Fashion media
- Influencer/creator partnerships
- Retail stores

Timeline

Seasonal Rollout

Key Performance Indicators (KPI)

- Website/app traffic
- Inventory sell-through speed

Spencer Van Goor – Final Portfolio: Press Release (Rough Outline)

LOEWE and ZARA Announce Limited-Edition Capsule Collection

A focused release that translates artisanal design and craftsmanship into a globally accessible for format

Barcelona, Spain – October 1, 2026 – LOEWE and ZARA today announce a limited-edition capsule collection bringing together ZARA’s global scale and accessibility with LOEWE’s craftsmanship-driven design approach. Set to launch online and in select markets later this Fall/Winter season, the collaboration introduces a strictly edited range of ready-to-wear pieces and accessories that reinterpret LOEWE’s sculptural and material sensibilities for a much broader audience.

The capsule collection consists of a varied assortment of ready-to-wear apparel and leather goods, featuring outerwear, knitwear, and small accessories. The collection emphasizes construction, texture, and form, drawing on LOEWE’s long history of their focus on silhouette and materiality. The restrained, rich color palette and architectural shapes are definitive highlights of the collection, with particular attention to drape, proportion, and finish. Despite being developed for accessibility, the collections maintains a clear design while staying rooted in craft and construction.

Among some of the standout pieces in the collection is the Marija, an oversized wool-blend overcoat featuring dropped shoulders, clean lines, and a structured drape, designed to emphasize silhouette and simplicity over embellishment. Footwear is anchored by the Catala, a chic leather ankle boot, defined by a LOEWE-inspired asymmetrical rounded toe and a subtly exaggerated sole reflecting form and proportion. Accessories include a compact leather shoulder bag, Seville, with a curved architectural profile and minimal hardware, highlighting ZARA’s modern construction and LOEWE’s material quality. Each piece of this collection, among the Marija, Catala, and Seville, reflects a shared focus on design, texture, and restraint, aligning with the broader aesthetic of the capsule.

The collaboration reflects a broader shift within the modern-day fashion industry, as we see consumers increasingly seeking access to price awareness and wearability along with design credibility and craftsmanship. With the combination of LOEWE’s heritage in craftsmanship with ZARA’s expertise in product development and distribution, this project explores how the elements of luxury design can in fact be translated into a more widely available format without relying on traditional exclusivity markers and sacrificing material quality. The result is a capsule collection successfully balancing both accessibility and aspiration, responding to evolving expectations among younger and more globally connected consumers.

“This collaboration presented an opportunity to explore and think about craft in a different context,” said LOEWE’s Head of Marketing. “Our approach has continually been centered around form, material, and the process of creation. Translating those values into a more accessible format that reaches wider audiences required a careful balance, overall ensuring the integrity of LOEWE’s design language remains intact.”

“At ZARA, we are constantly exploring new ways to connect with our customers with new, compelling designs,” reports ZARA’s Director of Marketing. “This collaboration with LOEWE allows us to offer a collection that reflects an astute level of creative direction while remaining accessible to our more price cautious, trendy customer base. It represents a continued commitment to delivering thoughtful and design-led products at a larger scale.”

The LOEWE x ZARA capsule collection will be available both online and in a curated selection of ZARA retail locations worldwide beginning later this Fall/Winter season; quantities will be limited with distribution structured to support a time-bound and focused release, ending before the Spring/Summer season.

The campaign supporting the launch adopts a minimal, editorial approach with an emphasis on texture, silhouette, and movement over incessant branding. Visual assets will be released across various digital platforms and supported by select media placements, aligning with both brands’ emphasis on design clarity and visual storytelling.

About LOEWE

Founded in Madrid in 1846, LOEWE is an elite luxury fashion house known for its commitment to craftsmanship, specifically in leather goods, and its focus on cultural and artistic expression. As part of the LVMH group, LOEWE continues to evolve its heritage through material innovation and modern design.

About ZARA

ZARA, part of the Inditex group, is a global fashion retailer known for its ability to rapidly translate emerging trends into accessible and affordable collections. With a dominant presence in worldwide markets, ZARA focuses on delivering widespread accessibility, contemporary design, and a seamless integration of digital and physical retail experiences.

Media Contact

Brand Partnerships office
ZARA Global
press@zara.com